Thank you for your interest in Scarborough Theatre Guild!

The Scarborough Theatre Guild is pleased to announce its 2018-19 Season!!!

And a very special one it is, too. This is our 60th season, and we have a number of events planned to celebrate the occasion that will be communicated throughout the coming months. But first, here are the plays we have selected for the upcoming season.

Dear Charles by Alan Melville

September 2018

Join us to celebrate the Guild's 60th anniversary as we present the very first play we ever produced back in 1959! In order to appear respectable enough for two of her three children to marry into high society, Denise Darvel needs to be properly married. But first, she must confess to her children that she was never legally married, and that each of them has a different father. Their alleged father "dear Charles" is simply an old portrait which she bought at a rummage sale. Hilarity and complications ensue when Denise invites the three real fathers to her house to allow the children to pick one for her to marry.

An O Henry Christmas by Howard Burman

November-December 2018

On Christmas Eve in the 1890's, a group of hobos on the outskirts of New York have an unwelcome visitor drop in on them. They agree to let him have some of their food and share their fire in exchange for some stories about acts of kindness from unlikely sources. The visitor even has the members of the group act out the stories. It turns out the visitor is an escaped convict, but before he runs off to avoid the police, he manages to touch the hearts of his "hosts" and to show them that Christmas is about more than the usual superficial things.

The Mousetrap by Agatha Christie

March 2019

This is the famous mystery play which opened in London in 1952, and is still running there today -- a record length of time! Several guests at Monkswell Manor Guest House are trapped by weather and cut off from the outside world as a murderer with a long-held grudge begins to take revenge. Everyone is a suspect, and nobody can be trusted. The trademark Agatha Christie switcheroo leaves the audience guessing right up to the last scene.

Opening Night by Norm Foster

May-June 2019

For their anniversary, a middle aged couple is going to the premiere of a new play. Ruth Tisdale is thrilled to be a part of the theatre scene, while husband Jack would rather just stay home and watch game 7 of the World Series. Ruth is so caught up with excitement that she doesn't seem to realize that the play is just plain awful, and the actors are even worse. Great fun for fans of live theatre!
